

GENDER PAY GAP POLICY

Rationale

The University of Mindanao (UM) adheres to the principle of equal pay for work of equal value. Recognizing that a gender pay gap may exist within the organization, UM is committed to proactively identifying, addressing and eliminating any unjustified disparities in compensation among employees, regardless of gender. This Policy outlines the framework for identifying, analyzing, addressing, and monitoring the gender pay gap that may occur within the organization.

Guiding Principles

Equal Pay for Equal Work: Employees performing work of equal value should receive equal pay, regardless of gender. In other words, similar jobs should receive similar compensation.

Transparency: The method by which salaries are determined and the criteria for salary increases shall be made available to the employees.

Fairness: Decisions on compensation and benefits shall be based on objective, job-related criteria, free from gender bias.

Monitoring and Review: Salaries of employees shall be periodically monitored and reviewed to determine the existence of gender pay gap.

Scope

This Policy applies to all employees of UM, including part-time faculty, across all campuses and units.

Definition of Terms

Gender Pay Gap - The difference in average earnings between male and female employees.

Equal Work/Work of Equal Value - Work that requires similar skills, effort, responsibility, and working conditions, regardless of the job title or classification.

Salary Scale – A structural system that outlines the pay levels for different positions within an organization. The structure includes pay grades or levels, each corresponding to specific job roles or responsibilities; and range of salaries where each pay grade has a minimum and maximum salary, to allow for variations based on experience, performance, and tenure.

Policy Statement

UM is committed to gender pay equality. Pursuant to said commitment, it shall conduct a gender pay analyses to identify whether a gender pay gap exists; and, if a gender pay gap is identified, to develop remedial measures to address the gap.

Analyses - The Human Resource Management and Development Office (HRMDO) shall conduct the analyses, consisting of the following:

Organizational Pay Gap Analysis – The average salary of men and women across the organization are compared.

By-level Gap Analysis – The average pay of men and women at every level in the organizational hierarchy are compared, to identify pay gaps within each management level, regardless of function.

Like-for- Like Analysis – Differences in the salary that men and women earn in similar jobs are identified.

The analyses shall consider factors that may explain pay differences, such as:

- Education and qualifications
- Experience and seniority
- Job responsibilities and complexity
- Performance
- Demographic information including gender, race and age
- Market forces and other external dimensions

Once a gender pay gap is identified, an analysis shall be undertaken to determine the underlying causes and contributing factors, such as:

- Hiring practices and starting salaries
- Promotion and career advancement opportunities
- Performance evaluation processes
- Salary negotiation practices
- Job classification and evaluation systems

Action Plan - Based on the results of the analyses, the HRMDO shall develop and implement an action plan to address and remediate the gender pay gap. The plan may include:

- Revision of recruitment and hiring practices to ensure equitable starting salaries.
- Development of Salary Scales
- Development of transparent pay policies and practices
- Ensuring that performance evaluations are objective, consistent, and free from gender bias.
- Review of job classification and evaluation systems to ensure they accurately reflect the value of different roles.
- Implementation of measures to support career advancement for all employees, regardless of gender.

The action plan shall include targets and timelines in the implementation of the remedial measures.

Monitoring

The HRMDO shall regularly monitor the progress of its action plan and the trends in the gender pay gap.

Reporting

The HRMDO shall publish a summary of its gender pay gap analyses and the actions taken to address the gap. The report will be made available to the university community.
